Lynn C. Tyler is a partner in the firm's Intellectual Property Department. He concentrates his practice in litigation of intellectual property matters, representing clients at all stages of the process, including pre-litigation counseling, alternative dispute resolution, formal and informal discovery, trial, and appeal.

Mr. Tyler has represented clients in federal courts throughout the country in cases involving patents, trademarks and trade dress, trade secrets, antitrust, non-compete agreements, and unfair competition. Some of the technologies involved in these cases include artificial hips, automotive fuel caps, cable television test equipment, cement kilns, electrochemical blood glucose monitors and other blood assays and analyzers, computer software, pharmaceuticals, and spinal implants.

In the last several years, Mr. Tyler has participated in more than 15 trials and evidentiary hearings. For appellate matters, he has been the lead counsel in over 30 cases before the Supreme Court of the United States and various federal and state courts. He is admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States, several federal Courts of Appeals, and the Supreme Court of Indiana.

Mr. Tyler graduated summa cum laude in 1981 from the University of Notre Dame and received his J.D. magna cum laude from the University of Michigan Law School in 1984. He was a member of the Michigan Law Review and elected to the Order of Coif. He is a member of the Seventh Circuit, Federal Circuit, and Indiana State Bar Associations, and the American Intellectual Property Law Association.

Mr. Tyler is the author of several articles published on issues of intellectual property or federal procedure in a variety of peer-reviewed publications. His civic activities include being a co-founder, past president, and volunteer for the Neighborhood Christian Legal Clinic (NCLC) and past chairman of the Indianapolis Civic Theatre (1999-2002). In 2002, he received the Indianapolis Bar Association Pro Bono Award for his work on behalf of the NCLC.
